

A daily e-mail bulletin of Czech wit & wisdom. For your free subscription, write to subscribe@fsfinalword.com

The next Czech dictator - Klaus?

As is often the case with institutions that have lost their way, the 13 Western embassies that promoted the Prague Pride event achieved the opposite of what they intended. Sure, they promoted gay rights, but more importantly they gave Václav Klaus a platform for reentering party politics. If Czechs are allowed to choose their own dictator, many will opt for a small-minded, populist leader who opposes all forms of political correctness, esp. those coming from the putrid West. However, the real key to understanding Klaus is found in the words of Mirek Topolánek. He told LN that Klaus plays 28 chess games at once and chooses the one that is most favorable at a given moment. By this logic, founding a political party after leaving office is only one possibility, but a very real one. So is the possibility that, once the world really starts going to hell, Klaus will use his existing office to become the next Czech dictator.

Do you want to be an intellectual snob?

The New Presence
www.new-presence.com