

A daily e-mail bulletin of Czech wit & wisdom. For your free subscription, write to subscribe@fsfinalword.com

Klaus vs. Roman

Miloš Zeman was already a top contender for president in 2010, even if he told Právo that running in 2013 was "absolutely out of the question." Despite Zeman's bright political future, and despite his relationship to Václav Klaus Sr., Director Václav Klaus Jr. of PORG gymnasium kicked Zeman's daughter out of the school for failing to pass a math test. Nothing testifies better to the assiduousness with which Klaus Jr. defended PORG's academic quality. Now, four years later, it is Klaus Jr. who has left the school, in part because of a disagreement with Board Chair Martin Roman over admissions policies. Far be it from us to defend Roman, but many successful schools give preferential treatment to rich VIPs and "legacy" applicants whose parents donate money. It might be elitist, it might be affirmative action for the rich, but even Harvard must accept this compromise to assure long-term financial stability and academic quality.

Read this later today in Czech  Find us on Facebook

Why not make this year your Best Year Ever?

www.annetereissfelder.com - 15 years experience in transforming managers' lives

