

A daily e-mail bulletin of Czech wit & wisdom. For your free subscription, write to subscribe@fsfinalword.com

Anofert as Apple

Apple is doing better than ever, having hit a market capitalization of $700bn. At the same time, it's starting to run out of ideas, and its customers are getting increasingly frustrated. It puts out new software that has major bugs, such as apps that don't work and playlists that disappear. This doesn't seem to bother Apple much, because its customers are locked into the OS ecosystem and don't really have anywhere to go. Anofert is also doing better than ever. ANO the movement is riding so high that a one-party government after the next elections is conceivable. Agrofert the company is invading every part of a person's life, from the breadbox to the outhouse. All Andrej Babiš needs for closing the circle is a funeral service, jokes ex-Prague Mayor Jan Kasl. Yet Babiš, like Apple, is running out of ideas. He's still running on the old operating system. If voters are sticking with him, it's largely because they have no other place to go.

Read this later today in Czech  Find us on Facebook

A panel discussion about literature, politics and religion on the occasion of the launch of Jiří Pehe's novel
Three Faces of an Angel

JIŘÍ PEHE
GERALD TURNER
MICHAEL TATE
ERIK BEST

Monday 1.12.2014, 7pm
~
Václav Havel Library,
Ostrovní 13, Prague 1