It's well known in Prague business circles that if you need the ÚOHS antitrust office to rule in a certain way, you must hire lawyer Radek Pokorný to attend to the matter, esp. if it is an issue of construction, telecoms or, now, the highway-toll system. Pokorný has a special relationship with ÚOHS Chair Petr Rafaj, which explains how a person with such low professional competence could be appointed - and reappointed - to a position that is so critical to the proper functioning of a rule-of-law state. By order of Prague 7 District Court, and in accordance with a ruling of Prague Municipal Court: We apologize to Mgr. Radek Pokorný for publishing an article on our websites entitled Pokorný and Rafaj, in which we falsely stated that he was hired by Kapsch to arrange for the cancellation of the highway-toll tender with the chairman of the ÚOHS Office for the Protection of Competition.

Prague Municipal Court also concluded that it was proven that Mgr. Radek Pokorný had general influence on ÚOHS Chairman Petr Rafaj, that it was revealed that Mgr. Radek Pokorný spoke of his contacts with Rafaj in a way that could be interpreted as an above-standard influence on him, and that he indirectly offered to use such influence.
