

the fleet sheet's final word

No. 4153

Free subscriptions at www.fsfinalword.com Thur., Nov. 29, 2018

With friends like Poroshenko...

The Skripal affair was full of amateurism on all sides, but the Britons knew what they wanted and made a convincing case to their allies. Despite all the unanswered questions, the U.K.'s friends stood by its side and rarely wavered. An ally, after all, is an ally. Compare the Skripal case with the Kerch Strait affair. The antagonist (Russia) is the same, but the "good guy" this time is of a completely different caliber. It isn't the government of Theresa May or the British intelligence services, it's Petro Poroshenko standing basically alone. His fundamental argument, if you break it down, is that Vladimir Putin has decided to start a war that will help get Poroshenko reelected. To mobilize the forces of good, Poroshenko called this morning in Bild tabloid of Germany for Nato countries to send ships to the Sea of Azov and for more sanctions to be imposed immediately. His partners are paying lip service but aren't looking for a war, at least not yet. Sen. Tomáš Jirsa of ODS summed it up well for Czech TV: "The situation is on a razor's edge, with two madmen facing each other." One of whom is our good friend....

Read this later today in Czech  Find us on Facebook

COMENIUS

INVITATION TO THE
23rd ANNIVERSARY
CZECH 100 BEST
GALA EVENING

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE
THE KEY FACTORS OF SUCCESS

NOVEMBER 30TH
2018

PRAGUE CASTLE
FOLLOW ONLINE

WWW.COMENIUS.CZ